

The Art of Building Bridges over Blurred Borders

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

[illegible]

Point of Sale: Advanced Learning of Private Traffic for Offering Machine

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [

Blurred Borders Experience

The Aesthetics of Ordinary Movements

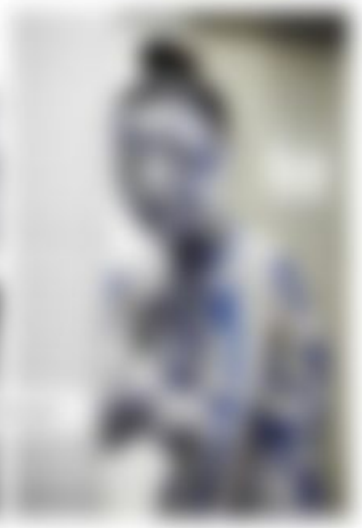

Fluxus as a state of mind, a space of freedom, borderless — and genderless — sharing

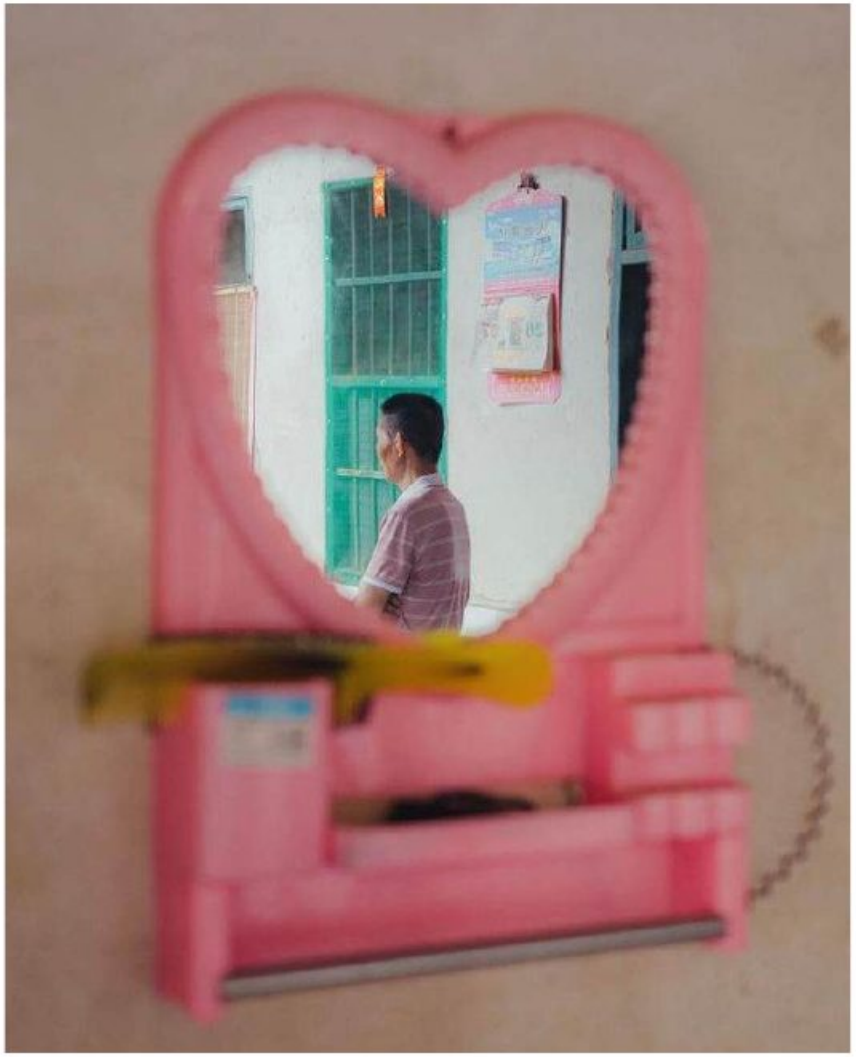

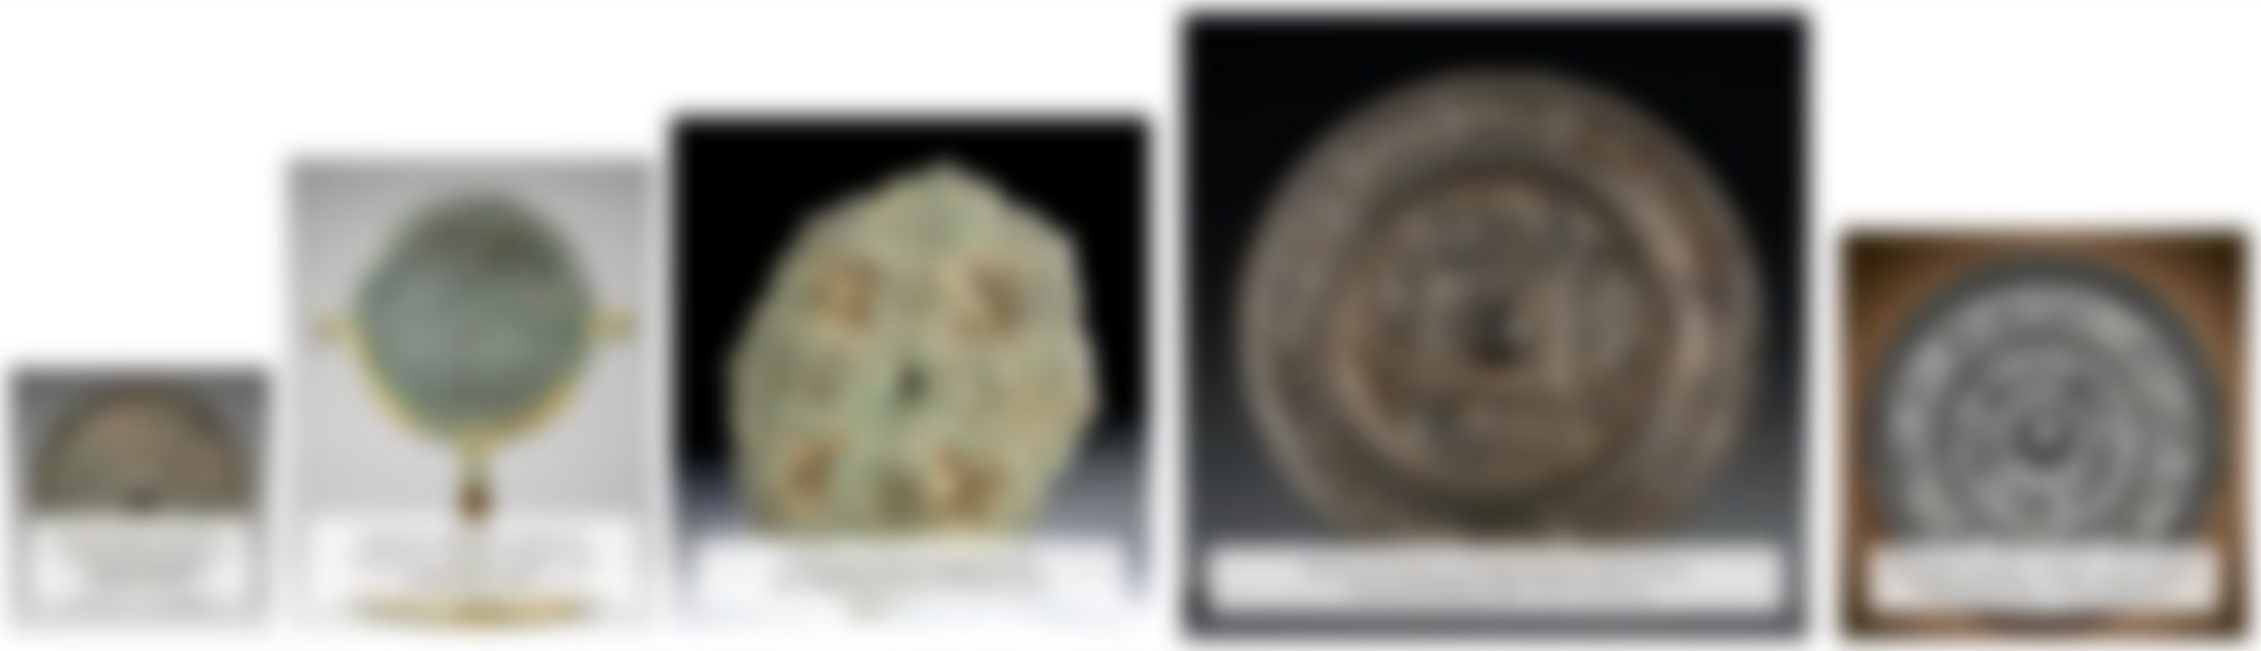

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [

History & Heritage of Chinese Mirrors

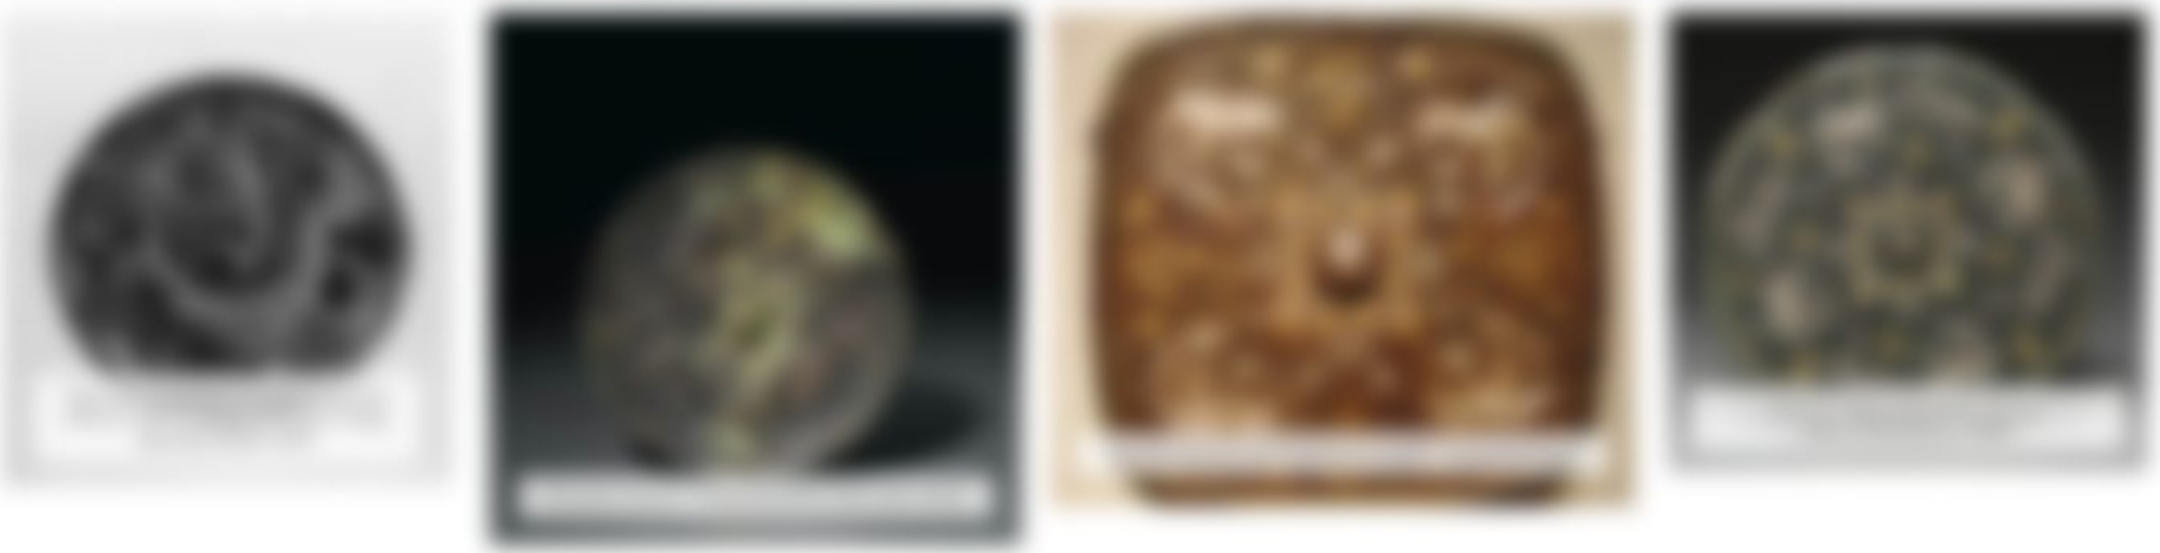

Reflections of feminine identities from past to present & their different functions through space and time.

About one of the most ancient, mysterious & magnificent work of art & craftsmanship.

Cake like pan, the the toast, the water, the gold he time sorcerer't sent office wind to your heart. Inscription on a Roman Pharaoh

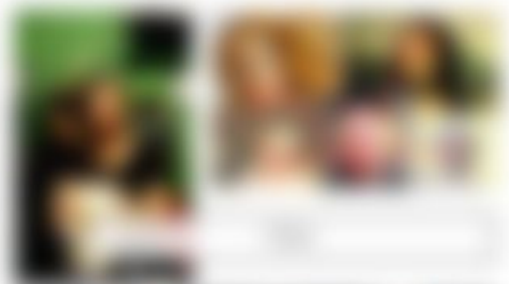

The Art of Building Bridges

Using Art to Connect Past & Present

Hong Kong Museum of History

1863 / An academical ideal of beauty.

Birth of Venus by Alexandre Cabanel, which created a sensation at the Salon of 1863; dubbed the "Salon of the Venuses" owing to the number of alluring nudes on view. The Salon picture was purchased by Napoleon III for his personal collection. The composition embodies ideals of academic art: mythological subject, graceful modeling, silky brushwork, and perfected form.

"The goddess, drowned in a sea of milk, resembles a delicious courtesan, but not of flesh and blood – that would be indecent – but made of a sort of pink and white marzipan" — Emile Zola.

